

A reading from the Gospel of Mark 10:13-16

People were bringing their little children to Jesus so he would touch them. The disciples scolded the people for bothering him. But when Jesus saw this, he became angry and said to the disciples,

‘Let the little children come to me, and don’t try to stop them. The kingdom of God belongs to people who are like these little children. I tell you honestly, unless you become like a little child, you will not enter the kingdom of God.’

Then Jesus hugged the children and blessed them.

ACTIVITY

Help the Children find Jesus!

In today's Gospel, Jesus' love for children is revealed. The people were bringing little children to meet Jesus so that He could bless them. They understood that Jesus was a special person.

The disciples tried to stop the children from reaching Jesus. They believed that the children were bothering Him! However, Jesus surprised them and said they should let the children come to him.

Jesus explains to us that if anyone wants to enter the Kingdom of God, they have to be just like these little children who had come to visit Him.

We must remember that like children we need to be innocent, loving, and happy if we are to be with God in heaven.
